Ladies At The Wheel
Modern cars look smarter and suffer from far fewer maintenance problems than automobiles did years ago and one of the reasons is women.

F. C. Welsh Lef's face it fellows, the ladies are more demanding than we are and the industry is hustling to meet their wants. This is the prime reason North American cars have always led the field in style, comfort and reliability over their European counterparts where feminine influence is less pronounced.

A recent survey reveals that eight out of ten women drive and that 48 percent of them drive every day. Ninety percent take the car out at least once a week. Forty three percent buy the gasoline for the family car and about the same percentage have the service work done.

Comparative accident records show they are as equally competent drivers as men, despite the fact that superior male chivalries may still be heard over those female driver jokes ("Ours is the only house in town with dentured trees - my wife drives.")

Ladies are most interested in style! A national magazine recently received 33,000 entries in a design contest for a car style of the future. It is a rare woman these days though that doesn't have some idea of the various working parts of an automobile.

We are always pleased to take the time to explain the technical mysteries of the engine or other mechanical parts of their cars to our lady customers. Experience shows that once properly informed, they take as good care of a car as they do their home.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Slim Gets in the Swim

John Johnson's eldest boy, Slim, is as tall as his dad is, and when he heard about opening for an assistant lifeguard at our local kiddie pool, he heard there was the perfect job for him.

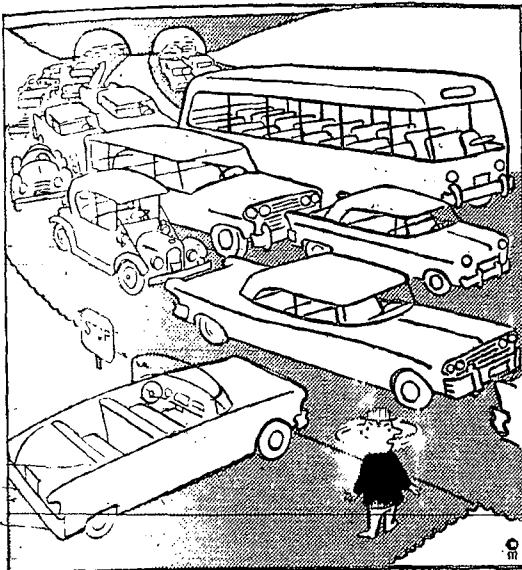

But when he made a bee-line for the head lifeguard, he was told how long it would take to get the job. "Well, to get the job, you have to know how to swim," the lifeguard, puzzled by Slim, said. "I know how to swim," Slim said, "but I don't know how to get the job."

From where I sit, it's not how you get a job done, but how you do it that's important. Most folks have their own way of working—a way that suits them best. It's the same when it comes to personal preferences. I may like an occasional glass of beer with my meals; you might rather have butter-milk. Neither of us is "right"—it's just a matter of taste. Recognizing this fact is one sure way to get along "swimmingly" with your friends and neighbors.

BITS O' TALK

The Art Carlson family had a switch in plans and camped at Muskegon rather than in Wisconsin. They visited the Museum of Science and Industry while in Chicago on the first leg of their vacation trip.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hoover for a few days were their former neighbors Mr. and Mrs. James Clara and son Randy of Detroit. All enjoyed a trip to the Straits and the Sand Dunes. Mrs. Hoover's daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Wain and three children of Hazel Park and Mr. Wain's brother Don of Detroit were guests for five days. The group also visited The Dunes.

Mrs. Vincent Kubick is again working at Dad Hanson's.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Foreman and four children of Monroe, Ohio, visited her mother, Mrs. Pete Myers, the week before Labor Day, also visiting her sister Mrs. Homer King and family. While here a party celebrating the 25th wedding anniversary of the Foremans, which was August 9th, and the 20th wedding anniversary of the Kings, which was August 30th, was held at Mrs. Myers home.

A very enjoyable summer is reported by the occupants of the Hideout on Big Creek. Starting in August, Mrs. Longdyke brought Gail Robinson to her cabin for a short vacation. The two visited Mrs. William Robinson at her summer place in Cheboygan. Mrs. R. treated her guests to a trip to Mackinac Island. Leaving Cheboygan, Mrs. L. took Gail to our noted Sleeping Bear Dune. Later in the week, Mr. and Mrs. William, Mrs. Anna Stolk and granddaughter Eulvers were guests of Mrs. L. Gail returned to Detroit with the Robinsons, who are her Aunt and Uncle. After a short stay by herself to enjoy some solitude Mrs. L. returned to her Birmingham home for a week. Coming back to the cabin with their mother for Labor Day weekend, were Joanne and Doreen. Unexpected guests invaded the Hideout one quiet night. Late in the evening Mrs. L. was busy at her desk working on her daughter Barbara's wedding plans when a car door shut. All was dark when a gentle wrap broke the silence of the night. Upon opening the door Mrs. L. gazed in awe at her friend Ruth, the last person in the world she expected to see, especially at such a late hour. Bill was with her and it was a happy reunion. The Robinsons at 9 p. m. decided to surprise Mrs. L. and they sure did. This will go down in Mrs. L's Log as an unforgettable experience, and incidentally some credit must be given the Mercury which so silently glided through the trail to deposit its passengers at the threshold of the Hideout without the slightest inkling of its presence. After a much too short stay the Robinsons departed to visit friends at Traverse City and Lime Lake, leaving Mrs. L. with high hopes of their return on the Labor Day weekend. During the month of August, Mrs. Jack Pessemeyer, daughters Carol and Mrs. Mildred Kohler, Mrs. Kohler and their small son Donnie vacationed at the Gus Middleton cabin next to the Hideout. The Pessemeyers are long time friends of the Longdykes.

Homer King, Jr., returned Labor Day to Plainwell, to resume his studies at the Michigan Rehabilitation Institute.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Paris and Jackie, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Medler and son Craig, all of Morley, visited the Bill Schreibers Sunday, Sept. 3rd.

Arthur J. Wakeley was in Mercy Hospital for three days last week, because of a heart condition.

Visitors at the Bud Hunter home Labor Day weekend were the Misses Shirley Centilla and Donna Dean of Alpena, to visit Patricia Hunter, and Mr. and Mrs. Al McCutcheon and son Bob of Jackson, to visit the Hunters.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Darling of Sanford were guests last Tuesday night of the Earl Woods.

Mr. and Mrs. Stan Berry were dinner hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Serge Reichelderfer and son Bill Wednesday evening, the 6th, in celebration of Douglas Berry's 13th birthday. Guests during the afternoon were Mrs. Berry's aunts and uncles, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Dvor of Houghton Lake and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Frayer of Deerfield.

Bob Hull and family of Lansing spent the holiday weekend visiting his parents, the Joseph Hulls.

Letters To The Editor

Mr. Robert W. Strong, Publisher Crawford County Avalanche Grayling, Michigan

Dear Mr. Strong: This week, as children return to school, our hearts go out to the deprived children of Michigan — to the children whose education is so sadly neglected. These are the children in our six adult mental hospitals. All of these children have learning problems. They require special education facilities. Traverse City State Hospital ill children. They take some part in the school for the mentally retarded patients. No teacher is available, however, who has been especially trained to work with mentally ill children.

The 99 children at Kalamazoo State Hospital should fare better this year because, last March, a separate children's unit was opened at this hospital. Many hospitalized children have a high potential for recovery but a good school program is an essential part of treatment.

There are many devoted people at these hospitals trying
